DESCRIPTION OF FACILITY CHARACTERISTICS:

Consistent with the BOP mission, the mission of the FCC Petersburg is protecting the safety of the public; creating a positive safe work environment for staff that encourages and supports learning advancement, and diversity; creating a safe and secure environment for inmates that provide essential services and assists the offender in transitioning into incarceration; providing quality service to the federal courts, members of the federal family and law enforcement community; being a good employer, a being a good neighbor to the citizens of the Tri-Cities area, and a good public steward.

FCC Petersburg is located approximately 25 miles southeast of Richmond. FCC Petersburg has approximately 1,038,781 square feet under roof, consisting of 67 buildings. FCC Petersburg is comprised of a FCI Medium, FCI Low, and a Camp. The site is approximately 560 acres with 46 acres located within the secure perimeter of the FCI-Medium, and 28 acres located within the secure perimeter of the FCI-Low. The entire complex operates with shared services in the following areas: human resources, employee development, training, financial management, offender systems, psychology, health services, facilities, information technology, and religious services.

The FCI Low was initially constructed in 1930 as a federal road camp to alleviate overcrowding at USP Atlanta. In 1932, it was converted to an independent institution and renamed the "Petersburg Federal Reformatory Camp." Over the years, several additions and improvements have been added to include the addition of a camp. In 1994 the "Petersburg Federal Reformatory Camp" was re-designated as a low level security facility. Today the FCI Low looks like a college campus surrounded by two security fences with two access points; a pedestrian entrance and vehicle gate. Inside the perimeter are the administrative building, housing units, medical building, commissary, activities building (chapel and psychology), education building, UNICOR print plant, maintenance building, vocational shops, food service, gymnasium, and an outside recreation yard to include a ball fields and a weight pavilion. The housing units include: Richmond Hall is comprised of two floors with cells and open bays; Lee Hall is comprised of three floors, of open bays; Virginia Hall is comprised of two floors with rooms and cells; and three identical housing units, Columbia, Maryland and Delaware with multiple occupancy cells; and Carolina Hall is comprised of two floors, open bay living areas and one fourteen man cell. Each housing unit provides basic furnishing, common shower facilities and latrines, and TV multi-purpose areas. The perimeter was secured with wire fencing and razor wire.

The FCI medium security facility was constructed in 2001 as a Bureau of Prisons response to absorbing the District of Columbia offenders. An administrative building is outside the facility and serves as pedestrian entrance into the facility. The facility is surrounded by a high security fencing system using razor ribbon, electronic intrusion and two armed patrols. A vehicle gate is located on the south side of the facility, controlling vehicle traffic into the facility for deliveries and pickup along with emergency vehicle access into the facility. Central control located in the back of the administrative building controls access into the secure perimeter. A walkway from the administrative building leads to the next perimeter, which is all the facility buildings. On the left, just before the gate is access for visitors to the visitation room. Offenders enter from the secure side of the visitation room. Clockwise from the visitation room a series of connected buildings that includes education, vocational training, and UNICOR. On the South side of the perimeter in order, continuing clockwise is the commissary, laundry, food service and maintenance area. On the west side is the three housing units. There is a fence connecting the food service area to the first housing area, between housing areas and on the north side of the complex a fence from the last housing unit to the recreation building. The three housing buildings are divided into six housing units. Each unit is further divided into a North and South side. Each side has two floors. The upper units (B, D and F units) have 36 two-man cells, 20 three-man cells, and 8 four-man cells. The lower units (A, C, and E South units) have 42 two-man cells, and 23 three-man cells and 4 four-man cells. The E North Unit is the RDAP unit and consists of 29 two-man cells, 23 three-man cells and 4 four-man cells. Cells provide basic hygiene and room furnishings in the cells, with common shower facilities. Each unit provides basic furnishing, common shower facilities, multi-purpose rooms, day rooms with televisions and phones, correctional officer station, and office space for staff. A hallway between units is additional office space, meeting rooms and closets. Just prior to the recreation building is a gate leading to the outside recreation area that includes ball fields and handball courts. The recreation building includes a gym, craft shops, music rooms, and card area. Just adjacent to the recreation building is the special housing unit. The special housing unit has two corridors, each with two floors of cells. A control room has views down each corridor and controls access into the special housing unit, into each corridor, and each cell. All are two man cells. Showers are on the end of the tier along with a meeting room. There are seven outside recreation cages in the special housing unit. Health services are next to segregation and across from visitation. It is well laid out with numerous patient rooms, specialty rooms, pharmacy, records room, dental suite, and administrative offices. The courtyard is a combination of sidewalks leading to the buildings and grass and flowers that are well maintained and provides a campus like atmosphere.

The camp is located across the street from the FCI Low entrance and consists of four buildings and a covered weight area. From the left to right is the housing unit, commissary and visitation building, a building that has education, health services, psychology, chapel and recreation located in it, and food service building. The camp housing unit has five floors of open bays and cubicle areas. Each floor provides basic furnishing, common shower facilities and latrines, and TV multi-purpose areas.

Outside buildings include facility and UNICOR warehouses, garage, powerhouse, training center, maintenance shops, weapons range and staff houses.

115.41 (d) requires, in part: “whether the inmate is or is perceived to be gay, lesbian, bisexual, intersex, or gender nonconforming;”

P5324.11 requires “All inmates entering an institution are screened as directed by Health Services, Psychology Services and Unit Management policies.” Staff are required to utilize the “Intake Screening” program statement, which outlines the issues and steps to take during the intake screening process. Additionally, the “Intake Screening Form” is accompanied by the “PREA Intake Objective Screening Instrument” for guidance.

The instructions for the completion of the screening form has objective criteria, which states that LGBTI status is based on documents received (e.g. PSR) or correctional judgment would indicate the inmate would have issues being placed in general population. Neither the “objective criteria” or associated “referral guidance” information is directly related to the standard requirement. Additionally, the intake screening form does not require the screener, directly or indirectly, to solicit a response from the inmate during the intake process.

During the corrective action period, the facility provided the new guidelines issued on September 11, 2014 (Intake Screening Guidance- Prison Rape Elimination Act) as well as information for the screener to provide clarification to the inmate, if needed which options may be provided for the inmate to choose (ie; lesbian, gay heterosexual etc.).
