

Congress of the United States
House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Friday, February 4, 2022

The Honorable Glenn Youngkin
Governor, Commonwealth of Virginia
P.O. Box 1475
Richmond, VA 23218

Dear Governor Youngkin,

I am writing to follow up on my letter dated January 5, 2022 regarding the egregious backup seen along Interstate 95, between Exits 152 and 104, following the historic winter storm of January 3, 2022. I am encouraged by the steps your administration has taken to prepare for recent storms, including declaring a state of emergency. However, I am concerned about a repeat of the circumstances that clogged a critical transportation artery along the East Coast for more than 24 hours.

As I wrote in my earlier letter, the traffic stoppages along Interstate 95 left thousands of drivers stranded on the road, in their cars, in freezing weather for more than 24 hours without access to food, water, heat, restrooms, and in some cases cell service. Since that event, we have all heard the harrowing stories from Virginians stranded in these conditions. Among those trapped included families with infants, Virginians on their way to parents' funerals, and commuters trying to get to or home from work. During this ordeal, they reported receiving no guidance, information, or support for hours, as they attempted to ration gas, stay warm, and calm their scared children.

One month later, Virginians still have no answers about how such a crisis can be prevented during future storms. Our citizens deserve answers about what circumstances, decisions, and events caused the I-95 catastrophe, as well as what steps the Commonwealth is taking to be better prepared in the future.

To this end, I am requesting an update on when Virginians can expect the results of the interagency after-action report announced by former Virginia Department of Transportation Secretary Valentine. In addition, I request information on how preliminary findings concerning the events leading up to and following the storm on January 3, 2022, have been incorporated into preparation for winter weather this year.

On behalf of the people of Virginia's Seventh District, I thank you for your attention to this serious matter.

Sincerely,

Abigail D. Spanberger

Member of Congress